WEEK-END LITTLE LEAGUE BASEBALL SERIES A SUCCESS

The week end baseball series involving the teams of the Northern Oxford County Little League was a success as a record turnout of spectators came to cheer their favorite teams. Fourth seeded Andover won over fifth seeded Bryant Pond in the first contest of the day. The Bethel Red Sox in number three defeated West Paris in the number six position. In the final contest of the day, Rumford Point defeated the Bethel Braves in a close match which ran into extra innings, when the Point came from behind to beat the Braves in the seventh inning, 4-2. Most of the contests were considered one-sided, with the exception of the Braves-Point game. Sunday found Greenwood in the number one slot pitted against Andover, with Greenwood the victor. The final game of the week end series found the Bethel Red Sox going down at the hands of Rumford Point.

The final elimination game will be held Aug. 9 at 6 p. m. at the Greenwood Field when again Rumford Point meets Greenwood for the trophy. The two teams, who battled into nine innings for the number one slot in the league, should provide an excellent contest for spectators.

Runs in the week end series were by Bean, of Rumford Point; home runs by Brooks, Bethel Red Sox and Kujawa and Seger of Greenwood. The umpiring has been done by John Kezal, Rumford Point; David Ellingwood, and Duane Hayes of West Paris.

There will be a practice for the All Stars from Bethel Braves, Bryant Pond, West Paris and Greenwood at the Bryant Pond Field on Friday night, Aug. 10, at 5:45. The opponent will be furnished by Greenwood. Each player should bring his own glove and favorite bat. The coach will be Herb Dunham, coached by Larry Whitman, Bryant Pond, and Herb Ryerson of West Paris.

The All Stars which will participate in the Monday, Aug. 13 game at Rumford Point are Braves—Keith Barrett, Scott Berry and Chucky Hall; Bryant Pond—Kendall Kenyon, Joseph Mills, and Mike McAlister; West Paris, Richard McAllister, Larry Noyes and Jay Whitman; Greenwood, Richard Allen Dunham, Don Hebert, and Steven Kujawa.

The boys will meet All Stars from the Bethel Red Sox, Andover, and Rumford Point.

SENIOR CITIZENS TO MEET AT RUMFORD PT. CHURCH WEDNESDAY, AUG. 14

UMF OFFERING TWO-YEAR LAND PLANNING PROGRAM

A new two-year program leading to an Associate of Arts degree in Land Planning has been inaugurated at the University of Maine at Farmington with the cooperation of the Androscoggin Valley Regional Planning Commission.

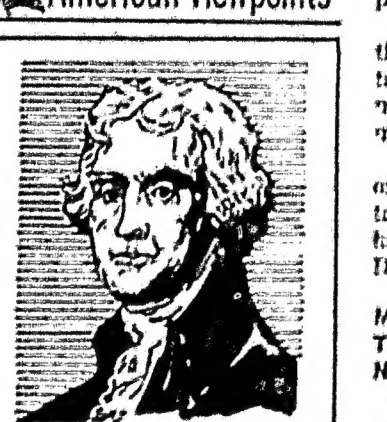

Dr. Eldred Rolfe, chairman of the UMF Geography Department, in announcing the program, said students completing the course will be qualified for jobs as technicians in city and regional planning offices in addition to being well prepared to provide services to town planning boards and municipal governments. This service will be particularly valuable to local units working to meet mandatory shore line zoning requirements or tackling other land planning problems. Dr. Rolfe said. (Dr. Rolfe is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Rolfe of Bethel.)

As part of the Land Planning program, an evening course on Town and Regional Planning will be offered at the Farmington campus beginning in September. The course, taught by James O. Nesbitt, executive director, and Stuart Cunningham, chief planner, of the commission, will be available through the college's Continuing Education Division to planning board members, selectmen, town officials and citizens interested in knowing more about the planning process.

Registration for the course may be made by contacting Dr. Harland Abbott, director of continuing education at UMF. Anyone wishing more information about the two-year Land Planning Program, which also allows a student to transfer to other four-year programs in the planning field or to continue to a four-year degree in geography at Farmington, should contact Albert R. Mitchell, Department of Geography, UMF Learning Center.

COMMENTS FROM THE OFFICE OF THE TOWN MANAGER

This week a team from the NTL conducted a small scale survey on the relationship between the citizens and their local government. The results although not conclusive due to the small percentage interviewed, indicated some lack of communication between town officials and taxpayers.

The most surprising aspect was no one mentioned the Town Reports as a source of information on town affairs. This column rated very well as a vehicle to supply news from the office.

There were some ideas imparted which will be utilized to transmit happenings that may be of interest to the public.

We received our monthly copy of the Legislative Bulletin supplied by the Maine Municipal Assn. This included 20 pages of very short descriptions of laws passed by the 109th Legislature which apply to municipalities. We will see many changes in election laws, environmental protection and human resources.

GOOD TURNOUT AT AUGUST HISTORICAL SOCIETY MEETING

A larger than usual turnout marked the August meeting of the Bethel Historical Society and several new members were welcomed. The Mollycodd Day booth was reported a financial success. Progress was reported as being made in the Society's major project the completion and furnishing of the Moses Mason House. Anyone with furniture or memorabilia typical of the first half of the nineteenth century which can be contributed to this museum, please contact the Chairman of the Furnishings Committee, Christine Graves, 491 261 or 424 2391. The Society is grateful to Anne Brown who has offered to transport any furniture contributions.

The highlight of the August meeting was Rosalind Chapman's reading of her manuscript dealing with the development of Bethel Hill from the town's earliest days to 1967 when the manuscript was written. There have been many changes since that time. The Society is grateful to Betty for the facts she has already compiled and hopes that she will continue updating the record, proving that Bethel is an active as well as a historic community.

GREENWOOD CITY

— Mrs. Colista Morgan, Corres. —

In our July world we have cloud knee-deep in summer. Our season has wooded ridges marching along against the horizon. Our roads curve, dip, turn, and climb. But now we are moving into August, the lazy month, with heat rising from the roads, summer fading and haze upon the hills.

I left this recently with Ruth and her son to make my first visit to Mt. Washington, to the top, by car.

The morning was uncertain in regard to weather but we made the decision to go, hoping for sunshine.

The road to the top led up and around and ever up, with high peaks above and all around. Occasionally we stopped to look out, over, down, and up. Sometimes we traveled where we had a glimpse of the foot hills we had just passed or saw slopes, humps and hollows dotted with scrub spruce. The scenery became more ruggedly arctic.

At times the sky was overcast, so it became a quiet, black and white and gray expanse.

We saw magnificent moraines, extending in majestic curves between mountains. Trails, rugged zigzag, led down into chambered hollows.

When reaching the top the mountain's rocky dome cut up into the sky. For a time the sun smiled on us as the clouds broke away. We had a wild view and time to take pictures.

Never before had I been so high and seen so vast a landscape. Such an affluence of mountain beauty! To one who has never been, my most extravagant description would only hint at its grandeur.

The museum was very interesting as were the other buildings.

The wind greeted us and blew in a steady current carrying wisps of cloud tumbling low and through our hair. The lower valleys were startlingly green below the gray mists.

We went to see the train which, too, had recently arrived. It had come its long way, puffing, to this alpine tundra at the top of the world. Everywhere the earth fell away and we saw a rolling mass of gray boulders. The soil had been blown or washed away untold years ago. Now the mountain top is a rough pavement of giant stones.

We moved down over some of these rocks, loosely packed, edging toward the clouds, to look for alpine flowers. In the places where anything can grow, were grassy, looking little sedges, snails, or snail eggs of the same that grew in the far north, Labrador or the Arctic Islands.

Children have been made and placed in the museum. Although many had gone by we did find fifteen specimens. The blue ball was beautiful as it grew along with the mountain over a hollow willow, reaching east and mountain grass busy.

The mountain constant was love, offering up its fragrance as I breathed it.

The country north branching woods stemmed, numerous needle-like leaves crowded on the stems, forms a thick spreading mat over rocks and bare ground. The fruit is black and berry-like. This and the cranberry may not be as colorful but are equally exotic.

Another dainty cushion is studded with the Diapensia. These are pretty white flowers rising above the leafy mats on short stalks.

The small goldenrod added gold to gold while near nestled the low rattle snake root.

All these and others such as minute azalea with bright pink blossoms and the Lapland rosebay held a fascination for me even though some were not in bloom. They are charmers on their neat little mounds.

We ate our lunch among these and gazed up as if it had rained rocks and they lay where they hit leaning on each other.

It has been said, "Where there isn't a way make a way" but here at the top of this mountain I think this brave saying becomes heavy with meaning and one should think before doing.

As I stood and looked into the ravines or my eyes roved over the vast expanse of gigantic castles and turrets I was impressed by the incomprehensible grandeur. As the mountains stood shoulder to shoulder they were Nature's monuments of the ancient ice river-lets from the glacial period. The ravines found throughout the host of mountains are, too, Nature's compositions. From these ravines rise cragging masses of stone, shattered portions of cliffs, or separate boulders, tons in weight stranded here and there.

Looking at all this in its brooding silence one might think Nature's work was done. But we know this isn't so for there is ever unceasing change: the wearing away and the carrying of mountains to the plains, ice charges to water, the lakes to meadows, and the mountains to plains.

The clearing effect of the wind can be seen everywhere.

Our guide pointed out so many things, such as the depth of the winter snow collection, trails, ravine names, and the alpine flowers which otherwise would have been lost.

Ruth and I took a short trail following the cairns and met her son at the road then went on down to the valley again.

One lake for down was nestled by itself like a little reflecting mirror. But even this and others which occur here and there, are not large enough to make an impression upon the mighty expanse of mountains. So writhing in loops and bends like a mammoth brown serpent the road wound, finally leading us away from the mountain top. My last look upward as we reached the highway was to see again the far peaks mushroomed in clouds, waiting for the sun in the valley to break through. Mt. Washington, a world by itself; where the clouds skirt, forever drifting, forever rising and falling with the wind's intensity or smiling in the sunshine. What a grand old mountain; perhaps insignificant compared to the Alps or Andes but to me a revelation. As John Muir once said, "Of all the upness accessible to mortals, there is no upness comparable to the mountains."

The following friends came on Saturday to wish me a happy birthday: Annie Mills, Shapleigh; Ruth Hastings, South Paris; Mr. and Mrs. William Slatery, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Brooks, West Paris; Eleanor Inman, Fay, Ann, David Holt, Doris Hayes, Frank and Dot Curtis, Local; Sharon Jordan, Locke Mills.

Ann Holt visited friends in North New Portland on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ardell Hayes, Auburn, were week end guests at the Hayes homestead; also Joy Hayes of Portland.

The Diarenzo girls have been here from Pennsylvania visiting their mother for several days.

There they went to Stoney Creek, N. H., where on Sunday Alan competed in another woodmen's field day. Louise Chapman and Allison spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Billings in North Woodstock.

Vince Chapman spent most of last week on North Pond with "Mama" and his aunt and uncle, Debbie and Johnny.

Andy Smith has been right in there helping his dad and brothers hay this summer.

SOUTH WOODSTOCK

Mrs. Olive Davis, Corres.

Mrs. Olive Davis went to Bryant Pond with Mrs. Lettie Brooks Thursday to help Edith Hathaway, Miriam McAllister, Phyllis Jordan on the Senior Citizens dinner Thursday.

Carl Brooks came up to help on the dishes. Verna Swan also came in and helped Carl by wiping all the dishes. "Many hands make light work," so the saying goes.

Percy Jefferson spent the week end at his camp.

Mrs. Jane Poland was at camp this week on North Pond.

Leslie Bryant helped his cousins out by helping them lay a new tile floor in the camp kitchen.

Ellis Davis came home from camp Saturday morning and found his mail box and post knocked down. Frank Campbell retrieved the mail box for them. They were thankful. A Canadian car came down too fast, as usual, and passed a car on the right so ran into the post. That was it, for the post. They went off without making themselves known. This is as usual, too.

A cookout was held at Leslie Thurlow's in honor of Stuart returning to his base in California after a 30 day leave. All his relatives were there. This was Friday supper time when the big rain fell. They were having a fine time and did not think about the rain until Little Leslie went out to change the car over. She found herself up to her knees in water by her driveway. Then they all tried to go home. Hendrickson Hill was washed out so they went around North Paris. Leslie Thurlow took his parents home. Bruce Thurlow followed and made it that way, as did Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Fleming. After that the road washed out and was impassable.

Virginia Herrick who was staying with Alvah Hendrickson tried to go home to West Paris and she couldn't make it because of the wash out. Mr. and Mrs. Larrie Wilday took the Harlow boys home so went back through Perkins Valley and were able to get home easily.

It is a coincidence to note that Stuart graduated from Telstar High School in just the same kind of storm as this which washed out the same spot in the hill as this time. Perhaps the next time will be his wedding day? Watch out Stuart.

There were two or three smaller washouts on Curtis Hill I believe. Some cellars were flooded with water. The Molykott Motel was flooded so that they had to get a pump pump to pump it out of the lower floors. The culvert going to Carl (Mumma) home was washed out five or six feet deep and had to be replaced.

Sunday, Aug. 5, an anniversary party was held for Bernice Davis and her birthday. Entertained her by the family at the Union Church in the afternoon. Those attending besides her immediate family were: M. and Mrs. Gerald Davis, daughter, Geraldine and her daughter, Toni.

In the absence of her father, the bride was escorted to the altar by her uncle, Herbert I. Howard, Mexico.

The bride wore a floor length nylon over satin gown with empire waistline, inserts of lace around the hem and cuffs of the long sleeves. The neckline was high with an old fashioned lace yoke. The waist length veil fell from stand up petals of lace and seeded pearls. She carried one long stemmed American Red Rose.

The matron of honor was Mrs. Ann M. Bishop, Andover, cousin of the bride. She wore a floor length dress of pale blue gown and carried a yellow rose.

The bridesmaid, Miss Karen Swasey, Andover, sister of the groom, wore a floor length dress of pale blue gown and carried a yellow rose. Each wore baby's breath entwined in her hair.

The matron of honor's two daughters, Alexandra and Valerie, were flower girls. They each carried a yellow Sweetheart Rose.

Somewhere there's a garden
So wonderfully fair
Where dwellth no evil
For God reigneth there
No sorrow nor sickness
No pain nor despair
For in that fair garden
My Saviour is there.
There in the garden
I'll worship the King
And with all the ransomed
A new song I'll sing
In beauty will surely
My heart once I'll see
His frail body changed
The soul shall be free
For I will no more
Prepared I shall be
To enter the garden
His promised to me
So I'll run life's race
Till my day is over
Then I'll dwell in the garden
With Him evermore

swimming classes at Lake Christ-opher on Aug. 3. Debra Backford and Beverly Treadwell taught the swimming lessons and for the first time teens helped. These youngsters that assisted completed late saving last year and participated in a water safety and course before working with classes. The instructors parents and students very much appreciate the volunteer service of these young people. Susan Backford, Paula M. Hene, Priscilla, Tammy Malt and Michael Rosenberg. A big thanks also to the mothers who generously volunteered beach patrol during classes. Safety equipment was donated by a number of concerned persons and erected on the beach along with instructions for its use. It is hoped that equipment will help to ensure safety swimming for many persons at the beach.

Tuesday night three other birthdays were celebrated at Sunday River Mr. and Mrs. Alphonse LaVallee and Mrs. Virginia LaVallee, all of Winthrop, Maine. The dates July 9, 24 and 29th.

We were shown a very interesting picture the other day of a pair of Canadian geese that stopped on their way north at a lake not far away and set up housekeeping. They have eight children or goslings, which are at the flying stage now. When food got a bit short they braved men and came close even took bread and corn off the man's hand. They have attracted many summer visitors.
